What the owner keeps each year at each fee, with everything else held equal.

Local full-service managers commonly charge 22–30%. Purgatory's resort program keeps 35%.

Using the home yourself

Block any dates you like. This is what a week of your own use costs in expected rent, by season.

$4,200	$2,500	$1,700	$200
A week in July	A week in September	A week in February	A week in April

What moves the number

- Professional photos, which we arrange before listing.
- Holiday pricing: Christmas and spring break weeks are priced well above a normal week.
- A hot tub, a gear room and fast Wi-Fi, which guests filter for.
- Pet-friendly stays and minimum-stay rules, set with you.
- Reviews: strong early reviews let the rate rise over time.

Rules for this home

- Unincorporated La Plata County: no rental permit required.
- Lodging and sales taxes are collected from guests and filed by Ophir.
- Occupancy follows the county guideline of two per bedroom plus one.
- The HOA, if there is one, must allow nightly rentals. We check before listing.

Our promise to you

22%	Year one	$2,500
One fee. $0 to join.	Beat last year's rent or we refund the shortfall, up to our fee.	Guest damage covered per stay.
15 min	$300	30 days
Replies 7am to 10pm. Someone at the house within 30 minutes.	Nothing over it without your yes.	Notice to leave, either way.

How we got these numbers

Nightly rates come from the comparable homes above and Ophir's pricing for each season. Nights booked follow Durango's seasonal pattern: July is the strongest month and April the weakest, about four times apart (Rabbu, trailing 12 months). The likely range is 18% either side of the expected figure. Running costs are typical for a home this size and will be confirmed at the walkthrough. This is an estimate, not a promise of income; the year-one guarantee is the only guarantee, and it is in writing in the owner agreement. Talk to your tax advisor about how rental income affects you.

Next step: a 30-minute walkthrough of the home, and a final estimate within a week.
